Madison County Sheriff's Office
James P. Sabin, Sheriff
2007 Report

In addition to the increases in nearly all categories, two major projects were completed in 2007 which will enhance our emergency response capabilities and the safety of our first responders.

For years, due to Madison County's physical shape and topography, radio communication from the far reaches north and south, to a centrally located tower, were often times unreadable. Over years as building and radio use increased in the county, this grew to an unacceptable safety concern for deputies and emergency responders. Radio repeater systems were installed on existing cellular towers in the north and south. This system links responders to a much closer tower for communications, thus greatly extending the range and eliminating many "dead spots" throughout the county. Repeaters are in place for both law enforcement and the fire service. In addition all Sheriff's mobile and portable radios have been upgraded over the past two years.

Secondly an extensive upgrade to the county 9-1-1 system has been completed to provide cellular phone mapping capabilities. For years, when you call 9-1-1 from a hard wired phone, dispatchers are automatically and instantly provided with a map and aerial photograph of where the call is originating. The technology to receive this same mapping information from a cellular phone has now been installed. Cellular phone providers have until May 2008 to configure their equipment to provide us with the needed coordinates for our county GIS mapping system.

In 2005 a complete report was produced which describes the duties, responsibilities and specific division details of the Madison County Sheriff's Office. This report is an addendum to that report, being cumulative totals.
